

One ETF TOPIX

Open-ended Investment Trust, Japanese Equity, ETF, Index-Type
As of 3/29/2024

Fund Description

The Fund conducts its investment activities to achieve the investment performance linked to the Tokyo Stock Price Index (TOPIX).

History of Investment Performance

The NAV is the value per 100 units and after deduction of trust fee. Please refer to “Fund Expenses” for the rate of trust fee.

As the distribution-reinvested NAV has been calculated on the presumption that the pre-tax distribution amount was reinvested, it differs from the actual NAV.

Distribution-reinvested NAV = Distribution-reinvested NAV for the preceding day x (NAV for the relevant day/NAV for the preceding day)

(* The NAV as of the account closing date includes pre-tax distribution.)

Tokyo Stock Price Index (TOPIX) is expressed by index based on the initial principal amount at the time of inception of the Fund.

The above graph indicates the past performance and does not promise any future investment performance.

There may be a gap between the trading price of the Fund at the exchange and the NAV of the Fund.

Major Investment Risks

As the Fund invests in securities, etc. of which prices move, the NAV of the Fund fluctuates accordingly. Any profit and loss arising from such investment belong to investors (beneficiaries) of the Fund. Therefore, the investment principal amounts of the respective investors are not guaranteed and any fall in the NAV may cause loss and the investment principal amount may be reduced. An investment trust is different from a saving deposit.

Factors to fluctuate the market trading price and the NAV are not limited to the followings. Please refer to the Explanatory Booklet on Investment Trust (Delivery Prospectus) for more details including other considerations.

Stock Price Fluctuation Risk

As the Fund invests in stocks, a stock market slide may become a factor to lower the NAV of the Fund.

Credit Risk

If an issuer of stocks in which the Fund invests faces or is expected to face any concerns about the management or falls into or is expected to fall into bankruptcy, the stock price of such issuer may fall or lose the value, which probably will lower the NAV of the Fund.

Liquidity Risk

In case of disposal or acquisition of securities, etc. by the Fund, if such transaction cannot be executed with sufficient liquidity due to market size, trading volume or trading restrictions, etc., the transaction may not be completed at the price expected based on a prevailing market rate or the price may be vulnerable, which will probably have an impact on the NAV of the Fund.
